Official Paper of Barber County

The Cook-Pearry North Pole controversy promises to stir up a bigger fuss than the Sampson-Schley controversy at the close of the Spanish-Cuban war.

Associate Justice Moody has the gout. There is this much to be said in his favor: none of his decisions from the bench will ever have the effect of causing laboring people to be troubled with the dreaded disease.

The tariff bill was too rank for Senator Bristow and he voted against it. Yet he compliments President Taft who lent his great influence to secure its passage and then signed the bill. Consistency, though art—mud.

Harriman, the great railroad king, is dead but the railroad monopoly system still lives and there will be other "kings" to take his place. Harriman's wealth is estimated at $100,000,000. From whom did he acquire this almost fabulous fortune?

John D. Rockefeller has declared himself against any income tax. This will strengthen the sentiment in favor of the tax for Rockefeller is one of the fellows whom the income tax is intended to reach. Under the present system he largely escapes taxation.—Commoner.

Regardless of the "knocks" that certain republican papers of this state and county are making on guaranty of bank deposits, it is here to say and it will not be many years until no bank in the United States will be permitted to do business without guaranteeing deposits.

These Aldrich-Payne republicans, who voted for revision upward and then go about peddling the miserable apology that the tariff bill is "the best that could be secured under the circumstances," really rate themselves a little bit lower—if possible—than they are rated by the people.—Kansas City Star, Rep.

Did you notice how the republican papers of Kansas "roared" on Congressman Madison of this district when he showed signs of siding with Murdock in the fight against Cannonism, at the opening of congress? And have you also noticed how they complimented him when he broke away from the progressive and ran for cover in the Cannon-Aldrich camp? All that a public official must do to be transformed from devil to saint, in the estimation of the corporation servers, is to quit serving the people and serve the "interests."

Referring to Representative Fowler's letter to Speaker Cannon, the Denver News says: "That Fowler's charges are true is a matter of common knowledge. Joe Cannon has held the speakership for years, and in no one of those years has it been to him a means of doing his duty. He has valued it, partly for the arbitrary power which it conferred, and partly for the chance to make combinations with Senator Aldrich and keep up the good old rule of politely named graft. Speaker Cannon is ignorant, not only of finance, but of every other matter with which a public man should be acquainted. He neither knows nor believes in the ethics of real representative government. He has no more conception of public duty than a leopard has of brotherly love. He realizes Macaulay's definition of the perfect hypocrite—the man who makes the vice which he has no objection to show a stalking horse for the darker and more profitable vice which he wishes to conceal." He has tried to make his coarseness pass for democracy; his brutality for honesty; and for a good many years he has achieved a pretty fair measure of success.

Senator Bristow recently arraigned the democratic party in a speech in which he charged that several democrats voted against the party platform and stood with Aldrich in congress. That is an unfair manner in which to assail party integrity. There were a few faithless and traitorous democrats in the recent congress, it is true, but the great, overwhelming majority stood up against Cannonism and Aldrichism and kept the faith, while only an insignificant minority of republicans had the courage to stand for the people against Cannon, Aldrich and Taft. The democratic party is not free from its traitors, but the democrats in congress who voted for tariff revision upward were comparatively few. They were about equal to the number of republicans who voted for revision downward. In other words, a mere handful of democrats voted for the trusts while an overwhelming majority voted for the people. On the other hand, a mere handful of republican senators and congressmen voted for the people while an overwhelming majority voted for the trusts. Which party has the clearer record and which comes nearer representing the popular will?

Concerning Mr. Madison

The farmers, who are paying high prices for their farm implements and for their clothing, do not want the cost of living raised—and surely none of them demanded that Mr. Madison vote on the same side of the question as did Mr. Payne. The Republicans promised revision downward, and Mr. Madison's constituents voted for him because they thought that he would do his best to fight the men who were working for the big interests of the East.

Mr. Madison wasn't convinced that he was wrong by the people who elected him. Some one did convince him and when he comes home he will have before him a campaign of explanation that will take him from Kingman to Coolidge.

Mr. Madison deserted the ship at the last minute, just at the time when a handful of votes would have sent the revision upward bill back to the conference committee. Mr. Madison hazarded a vote against the report, but on the final vote he flopped clear around and cast his lot with "Uncle Joe" and Mr. Payne.

The Seventh likes Mr. Murdock and Mr. Bristow. It is sorry that it has a misrepresentative who cannot rise above the political game and get out of the Calderhead-Miller.—Anthony Bulletin.

A Suggestion For Mr. Taft

The Philadelphia North American, a republican paper, prints this suggestion for Mr. Taft:

"Would it not be a good 'stunt' for Taft to pay the expenses of his trip around the circuit to tell the dear people what a good thing it is to be uncoined by the Taft-Cannon-Aldrich tariff inquiry just completed? He is fond of everybody confining himself to some particular 'stunt.' This would, at least, ease up on the people a little. Those increased salaries, traveling expenses and automobiles for our 'beloved' king and emperor surely appeal to the thousands of idle persons in central Pennsylvania. Looks as though panics can be caused by other than the democrats, don't it? But then when Emperor Taft meets 'Czar Diaz' somewhere along the Mexican border we presume there will be more notes exchanged and experiences gone into to determine how much of oppression and deception the American people will stand from their sworn executives and legislators.

"John G. Smith.
"South Fork, Pa., August 7."

Dolliver on the "Tariff Panic."

Not only have I succeeded in acquiring some little knowledge about these matters since the Dingley Tariff law was framed, but I have also acquired a rather more generous interpretation of the industrial and commercial situation of 1897 than I was accustomed in those days to put into my speeches either in the House of Representatives or upon the stump.

If I were called upon now, in the calm light of twelve years' reflection, to say that putting wool on the free list resulted in closing factories and destroying the flocks of the country and ruining the business of the country, I should hesitate to do it. It is a very wise man who can tell what was the cause of the industrial depression which burst in a panic upon the United States in all departments of its affairs in 1893. I have become satisfied that we, as Republican partisans, finding the argument too convenient, have exaggerated the relation of the tariff controversy to that great industrial crisis. It always was a little difficult to connect the panic of 1893 with the tariff act of 1894, in view of the fact that the event seemed to precede the cause in such a way as to put almost any ordinary man upon suspicion.—From a Speech by Jonathan P. Dolliver in the United States Senate
